AGS CoCare®: HELP (HOSPITAL ELDER LIFE PROGRAM) PRECONFERENCE

Room: 101

Additional fee session

CME/CE Credit: 7.75

Track: Clinical Practice

HELP has been working to make health systems safer and health care more effective for over two decades, preventing delirium, functional decline, falls, and other adverse outcomes among hospitalized older adults. The AGS CoCare®: HELP program ultimately promotes a growing trend toward “age-friendly health systems,” so named because they promote unique expertise on geriatrics focal points: Care for the mind, medications, mobility, and what “matters most” to patients. Join us at the AGS CoCare®: HELP Preconference and learn how to implement strategies for sustainability & longevity to ensure success of HELP in the hospital. Learning Objectives: (1) describe the importance of delirium screening and recognition; (2) assess the feasibility of the UB-CAM tool for delirium screening; (3) outline strategies for success in starting and/or sustaining an AGS CoCare®: HELP program; (4) review de-prescribing approaches for delirium prevention in hospital and long-term care settings; and (5) describe the Inter-relationship of Delirium and Dementia and the importance of delirium prevention.

DIAGNOSING AND TREATING ALZHEIMER’S DISEASE AND RELATED DEMENTIAS (ADRD) IN PRIMARY CARE

Room: 202 A/B

Additional fee session

CME/CE: 4 Track: Clinical Practice

Co-Moderators: Esther S. Oh, MD, PhD & Zaldy S. Tan, MD, MPH

Alzheimer’s disease and related neurodegenerative diseases (AD/ADRD) that cause dementia have high prevalence, and result in substantial morbidity and costs to patients, their families and society. Decades of research has led to the development of novel methods to diagnose and treat these diseases, many of which are beginning to be translated into clinical practice. Recent progress has been made towards early, disease-specific diagnosis, and therapies that have the potential to slow disease progression. The focus of this conference is to present the most up to date advances in Alzheimer’s disease diagnosis and care and how these advances inform the diagnosis and care of other common causes of dementia, particularly Lewy Body disease and LATE (Limbic Associated TDP-43 Encephalopathy). Attendees of this pre-conference will learn how to incorporate these advances into their clinical practice. In addition, attendees will also further develop their skills in caring for persons living with dementia, regardless of the cause.

Learning Objectives: (1) describe the current state of the science for diagnosing and treating Alzheimer’s disease and related diseases that cause dementia (AD/ADRD); (2) discuss cognitive screening tools and diagnostic tools that are used in screening for cognitive change and diagnosing the causes of the cognitive change; (3) review treatment and management strategies including comprehensive dementia-care models; and (4) describe key aspects of providing dementia care in a primary care practice, including workflow, quality improvement, billing and payment.

Following these presentations, the session will shift to leadership and program development with a presentation and small group work focused on examining how divisions are represented on their websites. We will conclude the preconference with a mindshare exercise, offering Program Directors the opportunity to network, share, and solve current problems they are facing at their programs. Learning Objectives: (1) describe the participation of Geriatrics health professionals in new models; (2) utilize approaches learned to develop the business case for geriatrics at their own institutions; and (3) identify strategies to create a better web presence for their program.

Moderator: Lisa M. Walke, MD, MSHA, AGSF

This session is designed to help program directors solve current problems. This will be done in roundtables during which each director will describe one problem in 3-5 minutes and the group will discuss the problem for about 5-10 minutes before moving to the next director's problem.

To make this session most effective, we are asking you to identify in advance of the meeting 1-3 work-related problems that would be relevant. They should be real problems although you should maintain confidentiality at all times. Problems may be financial, logistic (e.g., scheduling with not enough faculty), personnel and faculty issues, or problems related to the Department, School, etc.

At the beginning of the session, each table should identify a facilitator to guide the conversation and keep track of time, and a scribe (this way the person presenting the issue can listen fully without worrying about documenting the suggestions). The person presenting should 1) Describe the problem, 2) Present barriers to action, 3) Describe what has been tried and already failed and 4) Describe the desired outcome(s).

Now in year 3 many health care workers have left the bedside and the remaining staff is suffering from burn out and apathy. The skilled nursing facilities (SNF) and home health agencies are expected to provide “value based” care and reduce avoidable readmissions in accordance with The Protecting Access to Medicare Act 2014. The emphasis on quality measures remains and there is a push to require increase staffing in SNF. However where will we find people to fill the SNF positions? Come prepared to share your thoughts, expertise and learn from your peers.
